ABSTRACT

This bibliography of books and articles is a preliminary survey of material written on poverty and the black community. Both early and the latest works through 1975 on poverty are included. Most of the books included in the bibliography are noted themselves to have bibliographies that could be consulted for additional references. Among the topics that are covered in this bibliography are the following: the economics of poverty, marriage and family life, the politics of poverty, racial prejudice, the Civil Rights movement, racial problems the mental health of the poor, urban redevelopment, social structure and mobility, housing problems, and other poverty related issues. INTRODUCTION

This bibliography is not intended to be all inclusive. It is a preliminary survey of the large number of articles and books written on poverty and the Black community. Because of the present interest in that topic, I found the need to compile such a readily available reference tool.

Since the area is so broad, one will have to consult related topics--prejudice, economics, ghetto, slums, family, urban areas, racism, politics, income, welfare etc.--to get a better understanding of poverty in America.

I have included some early studies on poverty, such as works by Allison Davis, and Albert Lawrence DeMond as well as the latest works by such writers as George A. Davis, and Richard A. Cloward. Most of the books included in this bibliography, moreover, have excellent bibliographies and should be consulted for additional references.

It is the hope of this compiler that other writers and researchers will add to this preliminary survey and perhaps together we can come up with a comprehensive and exhausive bibliography on poverty and The Black Community.
